

its own network. To implement competitive services, Primus Telecom must obtain interconnection from PRTC and then work through the ordering and provisioning process to obtain the network elements it needs from PRTC in order to be able to provide service. In the meantime, PRTC retains the advantage of being the first to market and only ubiquitous network in the island.

The Parties urge the Board to continue to regulate PRTC as a dominant provider in the facilities-based local exchange market. The Parties strongly believe that the burden should be on PRTC to demonstrate that there exists actual, viable (not theoretical) competition for local exchange services in Puerto Rico, and that PRTC must so demonstrate, before the Board should consider eliminating dominant treatment for PRTC.

D. PRTC position as the dominant player has allowed it to delay interconnection of competitive carriers.

Pursuant to the Federal Communications Act of 1934, as amended, and to the Puerto Rico Telecommunications Law of 1996, PRTC is required to interconnect its network with competitive carriers' local networks.

As with other ILECs, PRTC is in a position to, and has used tactics to delay requests for interconnection from competitive carriers. Most interconnection agreements with PRTC have been executed only after lengthy negotiations and arbitration proceedings before the Board.⁷ These tactics are commonly used by ILECs to retain their monopoly status and delay market entry by competitors.

The Parties respectfully request that the Board not only continue to regulate PRTC as a dominant carrier, but applaud steps that the Board has taken to play an active role in promoting interconnection and the development of vibrant competition in the Puerto Rico market.

E. The Board should impose competitive safeguards as a condition to elimination or reduction in PRTC dominant obligations.

The Parties believe that before the Board can consider eliminating the dominant status of PRTC and its corresponding obligations, PRTC should be required to show that it provides competitive local exchange carriers ("CLECs") with access to its network and provides services without discrimination. The Parties urge the Board adopt competitive safeguards to assure that effective competition exists. For example, the Board could adopt a standard similar to that imposed on Regional Bell Operating Companies ("RBOCs"), under the so called "14-point competitive checklist" developed by the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC") under Section 271 of the Telecommunications Act of 1996, 47 U.S.C. § 271 (the "Competitive Checklist").

In order for RBOCs to demonstrate that there is a competitive environment in their operating states, thereby obtaining the ability to provide interLATA services originating in any of its in-region states, they must demonstrate that they satisfy the 14 points of the Competitive Checklist. In particular, RBOCs must demonstrate that they provide CLECs with: (1) interconnection; (2) access to unbundled network elements ("UNEs"), which includes providing access to Operation Support Systems ("OSS") and combinations of network elements; (3) access to poles, ducts, conduits, and rights-of-way; (4) loops; (5) local transport; (6) local switching; (7) 911 services; (8) directory assistance and operator call completion services; (9) white page directory listings; (10) access to - databases and signaling; (11) number portability; (12) access to services necessary to implement dialing parity; (13) reciprocal compensation; and (14) resold local telecommunications services.

As described above, given the incipient competition in the local market in Puerto Rico, at this time PRTC is not in a position to demonstrate compliance with the elements of the Competitive Checklist or a similar standard. Accordingly, the Board should maintain the dominant status of PRTC for the foreseeable future. Only after competition in the Puerto Rico market evolves sufficiently and CLECs actually have real and speedy access to PRTC's network, may PRTC request the elimination of its obligations as a dominant carrier. Once PRTC files an application for specific relief, the Board should consider opening a proceeding to determine the elimination of the dominant status of PRTC. The Parties believe that as part of this proceeding, PRTC should be required to demonstrate that it is actually providing CLECs with nondiscriminatory access to its network (i.e., meeting all the elements of the Competitive Checklist). Consistent with the manner in which the FCC has interpreted the Section 271 standard for RBOCs, PRTC should be required to actually demonstrate these facts and not merely promise to take actions in the future. Moreover, prior to eliminating PRTC's dominant status, the Board should consider requesting that independent experts verify PRTC's actions⁸; as well as require other comparative data showing that CLEC customers receive service in the same intervals as PRTC customers.

III. OTHER SERVICES

- A. Competition in the access and intra-island long distance markets is slowly developing in Puerto Rico, but PRTC continues to hinder competition through its monopoly tactics.

⁸ For instance in Section 271 proceedings in New York, KPMG Peat Marwick tested the OSS of Bell Atlantic, while Telcordia tested Southwestern Bell's in Texas.

The Parties acknowledge that after the enactment of the Puerto Rico Telecommunications Act of 1996, there is some degree of competition in the access and intra-island long distance markets in Puerto Rico. However, the current level of competition is far from the legislative goal of having a fully competitive environment. Most certificated carriers in Puerto Rico, including the Parties, have complained in one form or another about PRTC's discriminatory and anti-competitive actions.

B. PRTC continues to abuse its dominant position with respect to access services

Several carriers have initiated actions before the Board and the Federal Communications Commission to obtain specific relief from PRTC's anti-competitive behavior. As the Board is well-aware, several telecommunications companies have initiated a complaint in reference to PRTC's intra-island access Tariff K-2. As part of the K-2 Tariff Proceeding, the Board has received numerous examples of PRTC's actions in the intra-island long distance market. In the interest of brevity, the Parties note the comments made by other carriers in the K-2 Tariff Proceeding and urge the Board to ensure that the obligations imposed on PRTC as a dominant carrier remain in place until there is meaningful competition in the Puerto Rico market for access services.

C. PRTC continues to abuse its dominant position with respect to intra-island long distance services.

Although progress has been made, by virtue of its position as the incumbent, PRTC continues to hold substantial competitive advantages in the intra-island market, and must continue to be subject to dominant regulation if competition in this market is to grow. One salient example, is the provisioning of intra-island services to competitive intra-island carriers, such as Primus. Given that all Puerto Rico customers until recently had no option but to have PRTC as their preselected carrier for intra-island long distance, any customer that desires a different competing provider of long distance services must request that its service provider be changed, and PRTC must effectuate that change. Puerto Rico made an important competitive step in February 1999 when for the first time, customers were provided the opportunity to select other carriers as the pre-selected provider of their intra-island long distance services. As the Board is well aware, the implementation of pre-selection requires actions by PRTC to provision service to its competitors. Although some progress has been made with respect to interstate long distance provisioning, the intra-island long distance provisioning by PRTC remains deficient. During the recent past, PRTC's provisioning process for intra-island long distance services has required repeated manual intervention from Primus personnel making the same requests in some cases three or four times to PRTC, before the new customer's Automatic Number Identification (ANIs) are properly "picked" to Primus and activated. Primus representatives have held numerous meetings with PRTC personnel, to try to solve these ongoing issues. However, Primus is only receiving minimal support from PRTC and must do manual intervention in order to have intra-island orders picked on a regular basis.

Even in light of PRTC's recognized status as a dominant provider in the Puerto Rico market, PRTC's relations with competitive carriers are deficient and would worsen if the Board relieves it from its obligations as dominant carrier.

IV. CONCLUSION

Puerto Rico has made progress in implementing competition and we applaud the Board's actions to promote competition. However, Puerto Rico has a long way to go before a sustainable competitive telecommunications market exists with respect to local exchange, access and intra-island long distance services. Significant problems persist at the local level, and as described above, facilities-based competition is virtually non-existent. Access by new entrants to PRTC's network is an essential pre-requisite for sustainable competition. Such access is still essential to the success of sustainable competition in Puerto Rico, and likely will be necessary for the foreseeable future. In short, the current level of competition in Puerto Rico simply does not justify relieving PRTC from the obligations imposed upon it.

For the foregoing reasons, the Board should continue to regulate PRTC as a dominant provider of local exchange services, access services and intra-island interexchange services in Puerto Rico. Continued regulation of PRTC as a dominant provider will encourage fair and effective competition in local exchange and intra-island long distance services in Puerto Rico and prevent PRTC from using its control of local exchange and other essential facilities to inhibit the development of competition for those services.
